18TH CENTURY ENGLISH GEORGIAN MAHOGANY LIBRARY ARMCHAIR

$4,950

A handsome 18th-century English Georgian mahogany library armchair, combining refined craftsmanship with generous proportions and exceptional comfort. The chair features a rectangular upholstered back and deep, generously proportioned seat (19.5"D) framed by elegantly scrolled open arms terminating in finely carved handholds. The graceful cabriole front legs are enriched with carved acanthus knees, while the rear legs sweep gently backward, creating a balanced and timeless silhouette.

The chair has been upholstered in a colorful textile featuring an exuberant pattern of exotic birds, foliage, and fruit, lending the piece a vibrant decorative character while complementing the warmth of the aged mahogany. Brass nailhead trim crisply outlines the upholstery, providing a traditional finishing detail that harmonizes beautifully with the Georgian frame.

Equally suited to a library, living room, bedroom, or study, this versatile armchair functions as both an inviting reading chair and an elegant accent piece. Its comfortable proportions make it ideal for everyday use, while its classic English design allows it to integrate effortlessly into traditional interiors as well as thoughtfully layered contemporary spaces.
