18TH CENTURY FRENCH FRUITWOOD FARM TABLE WITH H-STRETCHER AND WARM PATINA

$11,000

With its warm fruitwood grain and rustic charm, this 18th-century French farm table embodies the character of a well-loved provincial piece. The rich patina of the aged wood highlights generations of use, while the sturdy construction ensures it remains a functional statement piece. A simple apron with a 24.5-inch clearance provides ample legroom, making this table as practical as it is beautiful. Its long, rectangular top features a timeworn surface, showcasing natural wood variations that enhance its authenticity. The straight legs, connected by an H-Form stretcher, offer stability while preserving the table's classic farmhouse aesthetic.

Versatile in design, this antique farm table can serve as a dining table. Its generous proportions also make it ideal as a worktable in a kitchen or a writing desk in a study, where its rustic elegance blends seamlessly with both traditional and modern interiors. Whether placed in a country home or an urban loft, this piece brings a sense of history and craftsmanship to any space.
