18TH CENTURY FRENCH PROVINCIAL HARDWOOD BENCH WITH SHAPED BACK AND SLED LEGS

$7,500

This 18th-century French provincial bench is a charming example of rural craftsmanship, combining graceful lines with a warm, time-worn patina. Crafted from solid wood, likely chestnut, the design features a high, shaped backrest with a double-arched top, gently flared sides, and a deep seat raised on sled-style legs. The scalloped apron along the front and sides adds a decorative flourish, softening the sturdy construction.

Centuries of use have imparted a richly textured surface, with visible wear and tool marks that speak to its age and authenticity. At just over four feet in length, the bench offers versatile seating for an entryway, hearthside, or dining nook, while its 16-inch seat height ensures comfortable use. Its simple joinery, curved silhouettes, and provincial character make it an inviting addition to both traditional French country interiors and eclectic settings seeking a touch of historical warmth. This bench embodies the practicality and charm of 18th-century rural France, where utility and beauty were thoughtfully balanced.
