18TH CENTURY ITALIAN WALNUT LONG TRESTLE DINING TABLE WITH CARVED DETAILS

$29,900

An impressive 18th-century Italian walnut dining table of generous scale and strong architectural presence. Measuring 107 inches in length, the table is constructed in solid walnut and supported by a robust trestle base joined by a central stretcher.

The rectangular top is framed with a molded edge and subtly delineated border, accented at the corners with carved foliate motifs. The surface displays rich walnut figuring, visible age cracks, tool marks, and honest wear consistent with over two centuries of use. These marks are not flaws but part of the table's authenticity and character, reinforcing its period origin.

The base consists of turned baluster supports rising from shaped, scroll-form feet, joined by a substantial stretcher that provides both stability and visual weight. The proportions are balanced and grounded, allowing the table to command a large dining space without appearing heavy. The construction and patina are consistent with late Baroque provincial Italian craftsmanship.

At over nine feet long, this table comfortably accommodates large gatherings and works equally well in a formal dining room, a villa setting, or a refined rustic interior.
