18TH CENTURY ITALIAN WALNUT SIDE TABLE WITH CABRIOLE LEGS

$7,800

An 18th-century Italian walnut side table with a rectangular top, rounded molded edges, scalloped apron, and shaped cabriole legs. The table has a warm honey-brown walnut tone with visible grain, softened edges, and an attractive mellow patina developed over time.

The form is rustic but elegant, combining the simplicity of Italian country furniture with graceful 18th-century lines. The shaped apron adds movement beneath the top, while the curved legs and shaped feet give the piece a decorative presence without feeling overly formal. Its compact scale makes it useful as a side table, small writing table, lamp table, or occasional table beside a sofa, chair, or bed.

With its warm walnut surface, practical proportions, and quiet architectural charm, this table would bring character and age to both traditional and relaxed interiors. It is a versatile antique piece with enough presence to stand on its own, while remaining easy to place in a variety of rooms.
