19TH CENTURY BIEDERMEIER WALNUT WORK TABLE WITH LYRE SUPPORTS AND FITTED DRAWER

$4,500

A refined 19th-century Biedermeier walnut work table, distinguished by its elegant lyre-form supports and clean architectural lines. The rectangular top rests above a deep frieze drawer fitted with interior compartments, originally intended for sewing implements or writing tools.

The drawer opens to reveal divided storage, retaining its period functionality and warm interior patina. The exterior showcases beautifully figured walnut veneer with subtle tonal variation across the top.

The base is particularly striking: twin lyre-shaped supports joined by a shaped stretcher, accented with vertical ebonized rods that add both structural reinforcement and visual rhythm. The legs terminate in small, stylized paw feet consistent with Biedermeier restraint and proportion.

With its narrow footprint (25.5 inches wide by 15.5 inches deep and 30.5 inches high), this table functions well as a side table, writing table, sewing table, or refined accent in a layered interior. It carries presence without bulk — exactly what good Biedermeier pieces do well.
