19TH CENTURY ENGLISH BOBBIN-TURNED WOOD ARMCHAIR WITH LINEN UPHOLSTERY

$2,995

A distinctive 19th-century English armchair defined by extensive bobbin turning and a wonderfully graphic silhouette. The dark wood frame features rhythmic rows of rounded turnings along the front legs, arm supports, armrests and lower stretchers, creating a strong decorative pattern that gives the chair character from every angle.

The bobbin-turned elements are balanced by simpler rear supports and upholstered seat and back, keeping the design from feeling overly elaborate. Newly upholstered in a neutral linen fabric, the chair has a fresh, understated appearance that complements the deep, timeworn tone of the wood. The contrast between the pale textile and dark frame emphasizes the unusual construction and sculptural quality of the turning.

With its upright proportions and upholstered seat and back, this antique English chair would work beautifully as an occasional armchair beside a small table, at a writing desk, or as an accent chair in a bedroom or living room. Its combination of traditional craftsmanship, strong geometry and neutral upholstery also makes it particularly easy to incorporate into a layered contemporary interior.
