19TH CENTURY ENGLISH BRONZE VERDIGRIS WALL BRACKETS WITH LUCITE TOPS, A PAIR

$5,500

A pair of English bronze wall brackets from the 19th century with lucite tops, scrolling motifs and verdigris patina. Elegantly crafted, this pair of 19th-century English bronze wall brackets exudes a classic charm that transcends time. Adorned with meticulous scrolling motifs and verdigris patina, these brackets seamlessly blend traditional artistry with a touch of modernity, as evidenced by their lucite tops. The verdigris patina, a natural form of weathering, adds a layer of authenticity and uniqueness to each bracket, showcasing a history that's rich and engaging. The lucite tops, however, inject a contemporary twist, providing a smooth and clear surface that allows these vintage pieces to adapt to various decorative contexts. Currently, two pairs are available, offering an opportunity for collectors and design enthusiasts to obtain these beautiful artifacts that are priced and sold per pair. Whether used as shelf supports or standalone decorative elements, these bronze wall brackets bring an essence of English craftsmanship into any space. Infused with historical significance, these wall brackets not only provide a functional utility but also act as conversation pieces that can evoke curiosity and admiration. Their blend of the old-world charm of bronze with modern lucite elements make them versatile choices for both classic and contemporary interiors. Enhance your decor with these artistic brackets, a true testament to English creativity and quality craftsmanship.
