19TH CENTURY ENGLISH FAUX BAMBOO SIDE TABLE WITH EBONIZED FINISH AND GILT DECOR

$4,800

This 19th-century English side table is executed in the sought-after faux bamboo style, a form that reflects the period's fascination with Asian-inspired design filtered through European craftsmanship. The slender legs are turned to imitate bamboo canes, with articulated nodes that give the piece its characteristic rhythm and lightness.

The table retains a rich, dark ebonized finish, contrasted by delicate gilt line decoration framing the top and outlining the frieze. The top features a rounded rectangular form with softened corners, bordered by multiple fine lines and subtle corner flourishes, lending a refined graphic quality to the surface. This combination of dark ground and gilt detailing is typical of late 19th-century decorative taste, balancing restraint with ornament.

The proportions are particularly successful—compact yet elegant—making it well suited as a side table, occasional table, or bedside piece. The faux bamboo structure keeps the silhouette visually light while maintaining stability.
