19TH CENTURY ENGLISH PINE FAUX BAMBOO BEDSIDE CABINET WITH MARBLE TOP

$3,750

A charming 19th-century English pine bedside cabinet, executed in the ever-popular faux bamboo style and topped with a white marble slab. Slender and well-proportioned at just under 34 inches high, the piece offers a practical vertical format while maintaining a light, decorative presence.

The cabinet features a single drawer above a small cupboard door, the latter framed with applied faux bamboo molding. Turned and ringed legs further reinforce the bamboo effect, terminating in neatly shaped feet and joined by a lower stretcher shelf. The pine displays a warm, honey-toned finish that highlights the natural grain movement visible across the drawer fronts and side panels. The marble top, with subtle gray veining, provides a durable and refined contrast to the warmth of the timber.

Inside, the cupboard offers useful storage for bedside essentials, while the drawer above allows for smaller items. Its narrow footprint makes it particularly adaptable — ideal as a bedside table, a hall stand, or a small accent cabinet in a layered interior.

The proportions and detailing are consistent with late 19th-century English taste for bamboo-inspired furniture, which brought a touch of the exotic into otherwise restrained Victorian interiors.
