19TH CENTURY FRENCH FRUITWOOD DINING TABLE WITH BREAD BOARD AND CABRIOLE LEGS

$9,600

A rustic French Louis XV style fruitwood farm dining table from the 19th century with bread board, cabriole legs, carved apron and petite hoof feet. Step into the rustic elegance of 19th-century French countryside with this Louis XV style fruitwood farm dining table. Celebrating authenticity, this table is beautifully shaped by peg construction, showcasing the era's traditional methods of craftsmanship. The warm fruitwood patina draws eyes to the carved apron, a testament to the table's elegant detailing, mirrored on all its sides. Standing on graceful cabriole legs that culminate in petite hoof feet, it is impossible to overlook the classic Louis XV influence. Notably, a unique feature is the breadboard—a nod to its practical and humble origins. With an apron height of 23.75 inches off the floor, it offers ample space for seating in complete comfort. Imagine hearty meals and memorable gatherings around this centerpiece in a vintage-inspired dining room. Its rich history also makes it an ideal conversation starter in an open-plan living space. The union of rustic charm and French artistry renders this table a must-have for those wanting to infuse old-world charisma into their modern homes.
