ANGLO INDIAN HAND CARVED SIDE CHAIR WITH RICHLY CARVED FLORAL MOTIFS, CIRCA 1900

$2,850

An Anglo-Indian accent side chair circa 1900 with abundant and richly hand-carved floral motifs, scrolling foliage, hexagonal seat, carved legs and dark patina. This exquisite Anglo-Indian accent side chair, circa 1900, is an enchanting testament to the mastery of traditional craftsmanship. The chair's overall design is steeped in elegance and history, showcasing an artistic harmony between form and function that continues to captivate to this day. Abundant and richly hand-carved floral motifs grace the entire structure of the chair, imbuing it with an aura of natural beauty and sophistication. These intricately rendered carvings are further complemented by scrolling foliage and a frontal sitting figure that intertwines harmoniously with the floral designs, creating an enchanting visual tapestry that holds the viewer's gaze. The chair's hexagonal seat offers a unique and eye-catching design element that sets it apart from more conventional seating options. This striking geometric feature is not only visually appealing but also provides a stable resting place. Supporting the hexagonal seat are carved legs that seamlessly blend into the overall design of the chair, demonstrating the artisan's keen eye for detail and commitment to cohesive aesthetics. The dark patina that adorns the chair serves to further accentuate the intricate carvings, adding depth and richness to the already captivating piece. This Anglo-Indian accent side chair from circa 1900 is a breathtaking work of art that masterfully marries form, function, and artistic expression. With its abundant hand-carved floral motifs, scrolling foliage, hexagonal seat, carved legs, and dark patina, the chair stands as a remarkable example of the timeless beauty and skillful craftsmanship.
