ANTIQUE FRENCH TRAMP ART MIRROR WITH STEPPED CORNERS, CIRCA 1900

$1,875

A French Tramp Art mirror from the early 20th century, handcrafted around 1900 with intricately layered geometric woodwork and stepped corners that frame the glass with graphic character. The frame is deeply dimensional, showcasing notched and chip-carved detailing throughout, finished in a rich mix of reddish-brown and muted black paint. Subtle floral rosettes punctuate each inner corner, grounding the design in folk traditions while lending it decorative flair.

Compact yet visually impactful, this mirror works as a statement accent in both modern and traditional interiors. Whether placed in an entryway, powder room, or layered among a salon-style wall of collected finds, it adds texture and historical intrigue to any space. Its sculptural quality and small scale also make it a perfect candidate for hanging above a console or fireplace, or even leaning casually on a shelf or mantel.

Wired at the back for hanging and ready to install, this antique French Tramp Art mirror brings both story and craftsmanship to the home.
