ASIAN PORCELAIN VESSEL TABLE LAMP WITH COBALT BRUSHWORK, LATE 19TH CENTURY

$1,500

An Asian Turn of the Century porcelain vessel made into a table lamp with custom gilt wooden base, wired for the USA. This striking table lamp, crafted from an Asian porcelain vessel dating to the late 19th or early 20th century, exudes timeless elegance. Adorned with hand-painted cobalt blue brushwork, including intricate calligraphy and decorative patterns, the porcelain showcases the artistry and cultural richness of its origins. Once a functional vessel, likely used for storing water, tea, or wine, it now serves as a captivating lighting fixture. The vessel rests on a custom gilt wood circular base measuring 6.75" diameter, adding a refined touch that enhances its decorative appeal. This lamp seamlessly blends antique charm with modern functionality, making it a versatile addition to any interior. Whether positioned on a console in the entryway, flanking a sofa in the living room, or illuminating a cozy reading nook, it offers both visual and practical value. Its rich blue and white palette complements a variety of design aesthetics, from traditional to contemporary. Perfect for collectors and design enthusiasts alike, this lamp introduces an element of history and sophistication to any space.
