ENGLISH 19TH CENTURY JAPANNED CHINOISERIE BOOKCASE CABINET

$12,600

An English 19th-century japanned bookcase cabinet, decorated with gilt chinoiserie scenes on a black lacquered ground. The tall, narrow form features an upper glazed bookcase section with two doors, divided glass panels, and a warm yellow-painted interior fitted with display shelves. Below, a two-door cupboard provides enclosed storage, with each lower door decorated in gilt with chinoiserie figures, architecture, trees, and landscape motifs.

The cabinet has a strong decorative presence despite its relatively narrow footprint. Gilt borders, floral details, painted figures, and architectural scenes continue across the front and sides, giving the piece the layered surface interest associated with English japanned furniture. The black exterior and yellow interior create a striking contrast, especially when used to display ceramics, glass, books, or small decorative objects.

This piece would work beautifully in a library, hallway, dining room, living room, or collected interior where height, storage, and decorative impact are needed without requiring a very wide wall space. Its chinoiserie decoration gives it elegance, character, and a strong English country house feel.
