ENGLISH GEORGIAN PERIOD EARLY 19TH CENTURY WALNUT BARLEY TWIST SIDE TABLE

$4,500

An English Georgian period walnut barley twist side table from the early 19th century with single drawer and H-Form cross stretcher. Crafted in England during the early 19th century, this exquisite Georgian period walnut side table features a rectangular planked top with beveled edges, providing a smooth surface with nice patina. Below the top, a single drawer, adorned with a metal pull, offers practical storage while maintaining the table's clean and classic lines. The base of the table is a true testament to the Georgian style, showcasing beautifully crafted barley twist legs with rectangular block joints, ensuring both stability and visual interest. The legs are unified by an H-Form cross stretcher, also featuring barley twist design, and accented with turned finials on the sides, adding a touch of decorative charm to the piece. Ideal for use as a side table in a living room, bedroom, or hallway, this Georgian walnut table brings a touch of historical sophistication to any decor. Its elegant proportions and intricate detailing make it a versatile and cherished addition to any home. The combination of functional design and artistic craftsmanship ensures that this table not only serves its practical purpose but also stands as a beautiful decorative accent, celebrating the rich heritage of early 19th-century English furniture.
