ENGLISH MAHOGANY 19TH CENTURY STOOL WITH TURNED LEGS AND CUSTOM LINEN UPHOLSTERY

$2,750

Rooted in 19th-century English craftsmanship, this mahogany stool balances refinement and function with its sculpted presence. The richly patinated wood showcases turned legs with reeded detailing, tapering into arrow feet that lend a graceful stance. A generously padded seat, newly upholstered in a neutral linen fabric, offers both comfort and a crisp contrast to the warm depth of the mahogany. A row of antique brass nailheads punctuates the perimeter, subtly accentuating the tailored lines.

Compact yet versatile, this piece serves effortlessly as a bedroom stool, tucking neatly under a dressing table or standing at the foot of a bed. In a living space, it functions as an extra seat, a fireside perch, or even a small side table with the addition of a tray. Its understated elegance allows it to transition seamlessly between traditional and contemporary settings, offering a sophisticated accent that remains as practical as it is timeless. Whether standing alone or paired with other pieces, this stool brings classic English design into modern interiors with effortless charm.
