ENGLISH NEOCLASSICAL STYLE 19TH CENTURY MAHOGANY CONSOLE TABLE WITH CARVED SWAGS

$15,000

Crafted in the 19th century, this English Neoclassical style console table is built from rich, figured mahogany and stands on six tapered legs with block feet. The long frieze is carved in shallow relief with swags and rosettes, an elegant decorative rhythm that runs along the front and wraps subtly onto the sides. With a deep, warm patina and crisp carving, this antique table brings both scale and refinement to a room.

Measuring just under eight feet in length with a 26.5” apron clearance, this antique mahogany console is especially well-suited to high-ceilinged entryways, long hallways, or formal dining rooms where symmetry and proportion matter. The generous surface easily accommodates a pair of lamps, stacked books, or a large arrangement, while the long stretch beneath invites an ottoman or a low bench to complete the composition.

Its neoclassical vocabulary—restrained yet decorative—blends well with both traditional and transitional interiors, whether placed against a paneled wall or beneath a contemporary mirror. A timeless English console for collectors who appreciate architectural presence and carved detail.
