ENGLISH REGENCY GILTWOOD CONVEX MIRROR WITH EBONIZED TRIM, 19TH CENTURY

$2,850

An English giltwood convex mirror from the 19th century, featuring the distinctive neoclassical design associated with the Regency period. The circular frame is decorated with a series of evenly spaced gilt spheres around its inner edge, creating rhythmic ornamentation characteristic of early 19th-century English craftsmanship. The mirror's surface is slightly convex, producing a softly distorted reflection that captures light and movement — a feature highly prized in Regency interiors for its dramatic effect.

The frame retains its original gilded finish, warm in tone and subtly patinated, with an inner ebonized band that enhances the sculptural contrast between gold and black. The back is fitted with an aged wooden panel, showing authentic wear consistent with age and use.

Elegant yet understated, this mirror offers timeless appeal whether displayed above a mantel, console, or entryway. It harmonizes beautifully with both classical and contemporary settings, adding a touch of architectural formality and historic character.
