ENGLISH VICTORIAN PERIOD 1880S BLACK COAL BOX WITH HAND-PAINTED DOG MOTIF

$2,250

An English Victorian period black coal box from circa 1880 with hand-painted King Charles Spaniel dog motif and gilded accents. Enhance your home decor with this exquisite English Victorian coal box, a delightful relic from the late 19th century that boasts both aesthetic charm and practical utility. Crafted circa 1880, this coal box is a testament to the artistry and craftsmanship of the era. The standout feature of this piece is the hand-painted motif of a King Charles Spaniel dog, expertly rendered with remarkable attention to detail. This charming canine portrait is a true work of art, showcasing the Victorian penchant for intricate and personalized embellishments. Gilded accents further elevate the box's visual appeal, adding a touch of opulence and sophistication. Beyond its ornate exterior, this coal box serves a practical purpose. In the Victorian era, it would have been used to store coal for heating, and today, it can be repurposed as a unique and stylish storage solution. Whether you choose to use it as an elegant accent piece in your living room or as a distinctive storage container in your home office or library, this coal box is sure to draw admiration and become a conversation starter. With its timeless design and classic charm, this Victorian coal box seamlessly bridges the gap between functional storage and decorative art. It's a testament to the enduring appeal of Victorian craftsmanship and makes for a remarkable addition to any home decor.
