FRENCH 19TH CENTURY ZINC CROWNED ACORN DECORATIVE FINIAL ON CUSTOM LUCITE BASE

$895

A French zinc crowned acorn architectural fragment from the 19th century mounted on a custom lucite base. This French zinc crowned acorn architectural fragment from the 19th century, now beautifully mounted on a custom circular lucite base measuring 4.5" of diameter, captivates with its elegant design and historical charm. The finial features a prominent acorn emerging gracefully from a bed of foliage, showcasing the skilled craftsmanship of its era. The zinc material has aged gracefully, presenting a patina that adds depth and character to the piece. Originally an architectural ornament, this acorn finial would have adorned the crown of a building, symbolizing strength and growth. The custom lucite base provides a modern touch, creating a harmonious blend between antique and contemporary aesthetics. The circular base allows the fragment to be displayed prominently, making it a striking focal point in any setting. Perfect for enthusiasts of architectural history or those seeking a unique decorative piece, this zinc acorn fragment can enhance various interior spaces. Place it on a mantel, console table, or bookshelf to infuse your home with a touch of 19th-century French elegance. Its distinct shape and storied past make it a conversation starter, evoking the grandeur of the architectural details from which it originated.
