FRENCH FAUX BAMBOO MIRROR WITH BEVELED GLASS, CIRCA 1900

$2,450

A rustic French faux bamboo wall mirror dating to circa 1900, framed in turned wood designed to mimic the warm, organic texture of bamboo. This mirror exemplifies the enduring popularity of the faux bamboo aesthetic that emerged in the late 19th century, echoing European fascination with Japonisme and exotic influences. The frame's finely lathed segments are joined in stylized nodes, enhanced by pegged corner extensions that lend a sculptural flair.

The clear glass plate features a wide beveled edge and light age-appropriate silvering throughout, contributing a soft, authentic patina. The back is secured with a clean panel and hanging wire, indicative of later mounting adaptations, though the frame itself retains the proportions, construction, and finish consistent with turn-of-the-century craftsmanship.

Elegant in its simplicity, this mirror works well in both classic and eclectic interiors—from a refined entryway to a relaxed coastal or country house setting—offering a subtle historic accent without overwhelming a space. A versatile piece with genuine period charm.
