FRENCH FAUX BAMBOO MIRROR WITH HONEY-TONED TURNED WOOD FRAME, CIRCA 1900

$2,700

A French faux bamboo mirror from circa 1900, featuring a warm honey-toned turned wood frame with classic bamboo-inspired detailing. The rectangular frame is designed with rounded rails carved with raised nodes to imitate natural bamboo, while the mitered corners create a clean, tailored silhouette. The glossy amber finish has developed attractive surface depth over time, with darker areas in the grooves, small marks, and tonal variation that give the piece its appealing antique character.

This mirror has a slightly simpler and more polished form than the projecting-corner faux bamboo examples, making it especially easy to place. Its scale works well in an entryway, bedroom, powder room, dressing area, or above a small chest, console, or bedside table. The warm wood tone pairs beautifully with painted furniture, wicker, rattan, natural linens, antique pine, and layered traditional interiors. It would also add warmth and texture to a more relaxed modern space.

With its French country charm, practical proportions, and rich honey patina, this circa 1900 faux bamboo mirror is a versatile decorative accent for a collected interior.
