FRENCH FAUX BAMBOO MIRROR WITH HONEY-TONED WOOD FRAME, CIRCA 1900

$2,600

A French faux bamboo mirror from circa 1900, featuring a warm honey-toned wood frame with turned bamboo-style detailing and a distinctive decorative silhouette. The frame is composed of vertical and horizontal faux bamboo rails, each carved with raised nodes to imitate natural bamboo. Rounded corner joinery and angled projecting ends give the piece a lively architectural quality, while the aged finish shows attractive tonal variation, from golden amber to deeper brown areas.

This mirror has the relaxed charm and decorative versatility associated with turn-of-the-century French faux bamboo furnishings. Its scale makes it well suited for an entryway, bedroom, powder room, dressing area, or above a small chest, console, or bedside table. The warm wood tone works beautifully with painted furniture, wicker, rattan, natural linens, and layered antique interiors. It would also add texture and character to a more modern setting, where the sculptural bamboo-inspired frame can serve as a warm counterpoint to cleaner lines.

Elegant without feeling formal, this circa 1900 French mirror brings warmth, texture, and antique character to a wall.
