FRENCH FAUX BAMBOO MIRROR WITH TURNED WOOD FRAME, CIRCA 1900

$2,350

A French faux bamboo mirror from circa 1900, featuring a turned wood frame with warm medium-brown patina and bamboo-inspired detailing. The frame is composed of rounded vertical and horizontal rails, each carved with raised nodes to imitate natural bamboo. The corners are accented with more elaborate turned finial-style details, giving this example a slightly more decorative and architectural presence than simpler faux bamboo mirrors of the period.

The surface has an attractive aged finish with tonal variation, darker areas in the grooves, small marks, and gentle wear that contribute to its antique character. The mirror's proportions make it especially useful in an entryway, bedroom, dressing area, powder room, or above a small chest, console, or bedside table. Its warm wood tone pairs easily with antique furniture, natural textures, painted pieces, wicker, rattan, and layered traditional interiors.

With its decorative turned frame and relaxed French country character, this circa 1900 faux bamboo mirror brings warmth, texture, and antique charm to a wall while remaining practical and versatile in scale.
