FRENCH FAUX BAMBOO WALL MIRROR IN DARK STAINED WOOD, CIRCA 1900

$1,875

This French faux bamboo mirror, dating to around 1900, brings the warmth and charm of late-19th-century decorative woodwork. The frame is crafted in dark-stained hardwood, worked to imitate bamboo with convincing nodes, tapering elements, and the characteristic turned finials seen on finer French versions of the style. The deeper tone of the wood sets it apart from the lighter honey-colored faux bamboo examples, giving this piece a more classical, slightly more formal presence while retaining the informality and texture that make faux bamboo so versatile.

The proportions make it easy to place: large enough to serve as a focal point over a console, chest, or washstand, yet balanced enough to hang comfortably in a hallway or bedroom. The mirror plate shows age and atmospheric spotting typical for the period, adding authenticity and character rather than distraction. The backboard is later but neatly fitted and does not interrupt the period feel of the piece.

With its sculptural silhouette and richly toned finish, this is a strong, attractive example of French faux bamboo work from the turn of the century.
