FRENCH FAUX BAMBOO WALNUT ENFILADE, 1900–1930, WITH WHITE MARBLE TOP

$18,600

A substantial French walnut enfilade in the faux bamboo taste, dating to the early 20th century (circa 1900–1930). The façade is defined by turned bamboo-form pilasters and applied crossed bamboo motifs on each of the four paneled doors, reflecting the continued popularity of late 19th-century decorative influences into the early decades of the 20th century.

Above the doors sit four shallow drawers framed with molded trim and fitted with simple round pulls. The interior offers generous storage with shelving, making the piece highly functional as a dining room enfilade or long console.

The walnut presents a warm, even tone with attractive grain variation across panels and drawer fronts. Construction details and interior finishing are consistent with early 20th-century production.

The white marble top is a later replacement. Its clean lines and polished surface suggest a more recent installation, providing durability while complementing the warmth of the wood below.

Raised on tapered legs with brass sabots, the piece has strong architectural presence and balanced proportions typical of French enfilades of this period.
