FRENCH MIDCENTURY PATINATED BRASS AND GLASS GLOBE LANTERN

$3,995

This French midcentury globe lantern combines a clean geometric structure with a light, sculptural presence. Formed as an open spherical cage in a warm patinated brass-toned finish, the fixture is fitted with four curved glass panels arranged around a three-light interior. The design is airy and balanced, with slender vertical and arched members creating the globe form, while the central stem, small finials, and restrained candle sleeves keep the composition crisp and elegant.

The curved glass gives the lantern more visual interest than a standard straight-sided fixture, softening the silhouette and lending it a distinctly midcentury decorative character. At the same time, the open framework keeps it from feeling heavy, making it well suited to an entry, stair hall, powder room, breakfast area, or landing. The scale is substantial enough to make an impression, yet the transparency of the design allows it to sit comfortably in a range of interiors, from classic French-inspired rooms to more tailored mixed settings.

Its appeal lies in that balance of structure and openness: part lantern, part sculptural object. Overall, this is a handsome French hanging light with a refined midcentury profile and an easy-to-place finish.
