FRENCH TRAMP ART MIRROR WITH DEEPLY CARVED GEOMETRIC FRAME, CIRCA 1900

$2,750

A striking French Tramp Art mirror from the early 20th century, crafted circa 1900 with a distinctive layered chip-carved frame in dark wood. The stepped construction of the surround, built from meticulously notched and stacked elements, creates a bold linear rhythm punctuated by uniform corners and edges. The frame is finished in a nearly black stain, allowing the deep relief to catch light while preserving a grounded and architectural silhouette.

Measuring 19 inches wide by 24.5 inches high, this mirror offers versatile proportions that work beautifully in a powder room, entryway, or layered into a gallery wall. Its historical character and restrained design make it equally at home in traditional, transitional, or contemporary spaces. The back is finished with a newer paper panel and is wired for immediate hanging.

This antique mirror is a compelling example of folk craftsmanship elevated through precision and balance—perfect for collectors and designers seeking texture and a quiet sense of originality.
