FRENCH WALNUT FAUX-BAMBOO MIRROR WITH INTERSECTING CORNERS, CIRCA 1920

$1,800

A small rustic French rectangular faux-bamboo walnut mirror from the early 20th century, with light brown patina, intersecting corners and slanted accents. Elevate your rustic decor with this charming small French rectangular faux-bamboo walnut mirror from the early 20th century. Crafted in France during the Roaring Twenties, this mirror showcases a rectangular silhouette with a thin brown faux bamboo walnut frame, featuring intersecting corners with slanted accents at the top, adding a touch of visual intrigue to its design. The back of the mirror is crafted from a single wooden panel, ensuring durability and stability. This mirror is ready to be hung on any wall, allowing you to effortlessly enhance your space with its rustic allure. The central mirror plate reflects light and creates a sense of openness, while the warm patina of the frame adds a cozy and inviting ambiance to any room.

With its simple lines and lovely color, this French walnut faux bamboo mirror circa 1920 exudes timeless rustic charm. It is a versatile piece that can be displayed in various settings, whether it's mounted above a side table, a credenza, or a commode. Perfect for a mountain cabin or country home, this mirror effortlessly blends with natural surroundings and complements a rustic aesthetic.
