LARGE 19TH CENTURY ENGLISH GILTWOOD CONVEX MIRROR WITH EBONIZED INNER TRIM

$12,000

A striking oversized English convex mirror from the 19th century, featuring a beautifully balanced combination of giltwood and dark painted details. The circular frame is richly molded, with a beaded outer border and a deep inner ring painted in a soft charcoal-black tone that enhances the mirror's sculptural depth. The convex plate, likely original to the piece, creates a distinctive panoramic reflection characteristic of Regency and Victorian interiors.

Originally designed to expand light within formal entry halls or dining rooms, mirrors of this scale and curvature were both decorative and functional — prized for their ability to capture movement and atmosphere within a single reflective surface. The gilt finish has developed a mellow patina, with traces of age lending the frame a timeless character.

This elegant mirror offers exceptional versatility: it can anchor a grand foyer, complement a mantelpiece, or serve as a focal point in a contemporary setting. Its size, craftsmanship, and restrained ornamentation make it an outstanding example of 19th-century English decorative design.
