MIDCENTURY BRONZE GARDEN SEAT WITH OPENWORK FOLIATE DESIGN

$2,200

This midcentury bronze garden seat blends Chinese design influence with sculptural midcentury flair. Cast in solid bronze with a rich, weathered patina, the piece features a pierced foliate motif throughout its barrel-shaped frame, reminiscent of traditional Chinese drum stools. Decorative floral medallions anchor each panel, while riveted bands reinforce the architectural silhouette at the top and base.

Its openwork surface allows light and air to pass through, giving the stool a delicate appearance despite its sturdy bronze construction. Aged to a mottled verdigris green, the finish adds a sense of timelessness and character. Use it as a garden stool, a side table, or a decorative pedestal—indoors or out.

Ideal for traditional and eclectic interiors alike, this bronze stool introduces ornamental pattern and historical weight without overwhelming a space. The refined craftsmanship and patina-rich surface exemplify midcentury appreciation for classical forms reimagined in metal.
