MIDCENTURY ITALIAN GLASS TOP CENTER TABLE WITH SCULPTURAL STEEL AND BRASS BASE

$9,750

Combining sculptural form with refined materiality, this Italian center table from the Midcentury period strikes a confident balance between strength and elegance. The circular glass top rests lightly on an expressive base of forged steel, its curving supports shaped into undulating scrolls that rise and fall in rhythmic intervals. The design references classical ironwork while maintaining a clean, modernist sensibility. Two brass rings — one just beneath the top and a second at the base — provide structural integrity and tonal contrast, adding a touch of warmth to the cool steel framework.

The proportions are generous but well-resolved, with a 48-inch glass top and an overall height of approximately 25 inches, making it equally suitable as a center table in a spacious foyer or a living room. The glass allows full visibility of the sculptural base from every angle, keeping the piece visually open and architectural. A strong candidate for interiors that value craftsmanship, proportion, and the interplay of metal and glass, this piece reflects the Italian commitment to design that is both decorative and functional.
