MIDCENTURY STYLE STEEL AND NICKEL EIGHT-LIGHT LANTERN WITH GLASS PANELS

$4,500

This lantern is executed in steel with a polished nickel finish and a contrasting black-framed glazed body, presenting a crisp, architectural silhouette inspired by midcentury design. The form is structured around a tapered rectangular body with clear glass panels, suspended within a curved nickel framework that arches upward to a central finial and chain support.

The interplay between the linear black frame and the reflective nickel structure creates a balanced composition, emphasizing both geometry and lightness. The open framework allows the lantern to read visually clean and unobtrusive despite its scale.

The interior features eight lights arranged around a central stem, combining candle-style sockets with additional lower bulbs to provide layered illumination. This configuration enhances both ambient light and visual depth within the fixture.

Professionally rewired for use in the United States, the lantern is ready for installation. Its restrained, modern profile makes it well suited for entryways, stairwells, or contemporary interiors seeking a structured lighting element with subtle contrast.
