NEOCLASSICAL STYLE 1900S FRENCH CARVED WALNUT BENCH WITH NATURAL FINISH

$2,700

A French Neoclassical style walnut bench from circa 1900 with carved décor, fluted carved legs on arrow feet and cross stretcher. Imbued with the timeless elegance of the Neoclassical style, this French walnut bench from circa 1900 boasts a captivating blend of classical elements and traditional craftsmanship. Its natural finish enhances the allure of the walnut wood, creating a warm, inviting feel. Distinguished by its richly carved décor, the bench exhibits exquisite attention to detail. The carvings enhance the bench's aesthetic appeal, adding a touch of artisanal charm. From its fluted carved legs on arrow feet to the intricate cross stretcher with a finial centerpiece, each element is a testament to the high-quality craftsmanship of the period. The bench features a new linen upholstery, a tasteful complement to the natural patina of the walnut. Sitting above a carved frieze, the upholstery elevates the overall comfort, making the bench not just a stylish statement but a practical seating option. Perfectly balanced on four elegantly carved fluted legs, the bench displays an elongated X-form stretcher at the base, creating an enduring sense of stability and resilience. The legs connect through this unique stretcher, further reinforcing the structure and design harmony. Experience the distinctive allure of the French Neoclassical style with this meticulously crafted walnut bench. Its combination of functional design, intricate carvings, and new linen upholstery ensures a versatile, stylish addition to any interior décor. This bench stands as an exquisite example of early 20th-century French craftsmanship.
