PAIR OF 19TH CENTURY ENGLISH OAK STOOLS WITH CUSTOM LINEN UPHOLSTERY

$4,200

This pair of 19th-century English stools is crafted in oak and presented with custom linen upholstery accented by evenly spaced nailhead trim. The square seats have a clean, tailored look that gives the pair a fresh and versatile presence, while the warm tone of the wood keeps them grounded in a more traditional English furniture vocabulary.

Each stool stands on turned legs with simple ring detail, lending the forms a restrained decorative quality without making them feel fussy. Their proportions are especially useful, allowing them to function easily as occasional stools, vanity seats, extra seating, or as compact accents at the foot of a bed or in a dressing room. The light upholstery brightens the overall look and makes the pair easy to place in both classic and more updated interiors.

The combination of antique oak frames and later custom upholstery gives these stools practical appeal. They retain enough period character in the legs and construction to read as authentic 19th-century English pieces, while the neutral linen and nailhead finish make them immediately usable in today's interiors.
