PAIR OF 19TH CENTURY FRENCH DIRECTOIRE UPHOLSTERED BERGÈRES WITH TWISTED COLUMNS

$9,900

A pair of French Directoire style painted wood bergères chairs from the 19th century with twisted columns and new custom upholstery. This elegant pair of French Directoire style bergères chairs, dating back to the 19th century, exudes timeless sophistication with their delicate painted wood frames and new custom upholstery. The chairs feature gently curving backs designed to cradle the sitter, providing both comfort and support. Their arm supports are adorned with twisted columns that showcase intricate acanthus leaf details and rosettes, adding a refined touch to the overall design. The legs are elegantly fluted, tapering in the front and saber-shaped in the back, enhancing the chairs' graceful silhouette. The custom upholstery, crafted from soft linen fabric, covers the seats, backs, and partial arms, adding a contemporary touch while remaining true to their classic origins. The antique white or light creamy gray painted finish provides a gentle contrast, highlighting the chairs' exquisite details and evoking a sense of French elegance. These bergères chairs would make a charming addition to any home, whether placed in a living room, bedroom, or study. They can serve as comfortable reading chairs or accent pieces, infusing a space with classic charm and a touch of Parisian sophistication. With their delicate detailing and subtle color palette, these chairs will seamlessly blend with various decor styles, from traditional to modern, offering both beauty and practicality to any room they grace.
