PAIR OF ANTIQUE BLUE AND WHITE PORCELAIN JARS MADE INTO WIRED TABLE LAMPS

$2,850

A pair of white and blue porcelain jars from the early 20th century with auspicious fish and water plant motifs, made into modern table lamps wired for the USA. Transform your space with this elegant pair of early 20th-century blue and white porcelain jars, beautifully repurposed as modern table lamps. These lamps feature intricate hand-painted fish and water plant motifs, symbols of abundance and harmony in Chinese culture. The delicate cobalt brushwork against a pristine white glaze creates a striking contrast, drawing the eye to the flowing, organic designs that evoke the tranquility of a serene water garden. Mounted on sleek black custom bases, these lamps offer a perfect blend of traditional artistry and modern functionality. Whether placed on a console in an entryway or used as statement pieces on bedside tables, they bring a sense of refined sophistication to any setting. Their timeless design complements a range of interiors, from classic to contemporary, while the serene motifs promote a calm and inviting atmosphere. Ideal for those who appreciate the artistry of early Chinese porcelain, these lamps serve as both functional lighting and captivating decorative accents. The elegant silhouette and cultural motifs make them an excellent choice for adding a touch of global charm and historical richness to your living space.
