PAIR OF ENGLISH 19TH CENTURY COUNTRY OAK UPHOLSTERED STOOLS

$3,995

This handsome pair of 19th century English stools combines classic country craftsmanship with clean, timeless lines. Raised on elegantly turned oak legs joined by turned X-form stretchers, each stool displays the honest construction and balanced proportions that have made English furniture so enduringly popular. The warm oak frames contrast beautifully with the recently upholstered neutral linen seats, finished with individually applied brass nailhead trim that lends a tailored appearance while complementing the rich patina of the wood.

Their compact scale makes them remarkably versatile throughout the home. They work equally well as fireside stools, extra seating in a living room, footstools beside an armchair, bedroom seating at the foot of a bed, or tucked beneath a console or dressing table until needed. The restrained English Country design allows them to complement both traditional interiors and thoughtfully layered contemporary spaces, while the fresh neutral upholstery offers a timeless look that is easy to incorporate into a variety of décors.

Practical, and beautifully proportioned, this pair offers the warmth and authenticity of 19th century English furniture while remaining highly functional for modern living.
