PAIR OF ENGLISH MAHOGANY DEMILUNE CONSOLE TABLES WITH FLUTED LEGS, 19TH CENTURY

$12,600

This elegant pair of English mahogany console tables from the 19th century showcases timeless neoclassical inspiration. Designed with demi-lune tops and richly figured mahogany veneers, each table is supported by three finely turned and fluted legs that taper gently toward delicately turned arrow feet. The apron follows the soft curve of the top and features subtly recessed corners where the legs meet the frieze, lending a sense of architectural harmony to the overall design.

The pair can be displayed side by side as a circular center table or placed individually along a wall as separate consoles. Their scale is ideal for entryways, dining rooms, or behind a sofa, offering both function and visual appeal. The lustrous patina enhances the deep, warm tones of the mahogany, drawing attention to the quality of the timber and craftsmanship. With their graceful silhouettes and versatile placement possibilities, these English demilune console tables will lend a note of classical restraint and sophistication to traditional or transitional interiors.
