PAIR OF ENGLISH SILVERPLATE WINE COOLERS WITH LION MASK HANDLES, CIRCA 1900

$2,400

An elegant pair of English silverplate wine coolers from circa 1900, each featuring a classic urn form raised on a circular pedestal base. The coolers are distinguished by their refined neoclassical design and beautifully cast lion mask handles, complete with prominent ring pulls. These sculptural elements add both functionality and a regal air, evoking the grandeur of English serving traditions at the turn of the 20th century.

The removable inner liners, visible in the disassembled view, confirm their practical purpose and allow for easy cleaning and chilling. The silverplate surfaces display a warm, reflective sheen with light signs of age, offering a desirable patina consistent with their antique status. Measuring approximately 10 inches tall with a 5-inch wide opening, they are well-scaled for entertaining yet compact enough to style on a bar cart, dining sideboard, or console.

Perfect for use as wine or champagne coolers, or repurposed as flower vases or decorative vessels, this handsome pair will bring timeless sophistication to any interior or table setting.
