PAIR OF ENGLISH VICTORIAN 19TH CENTURY CAST IRON PLANTERS WITH NEOCLASSICAL URNS

$15,600

A pair of English Victorian period cast iron planters from the 19th century with Neoclassical urns sitting atop tapering pilasters. This exquisite pair of English Victorian period cast iron planters, dating back to the 19th century, beautifully encapsulates the elegance of Neoclassical design. Each planter features an urn, gracefully resting atop a tapering pilaster that commands attention with its pierced X-motifs, adding a layer of intricate detail to the already sophisticated silhouette. The urns are complemented by linear S-scroll handles, enhancing their classic appeal and providing a harmonious balance between form and function. The ensemble is grounded by sturdy circular bases, ensuring stability and durability. These planters, with their rich historical provenance and timeless design, offer a unique opportunity to incorporate a piece of the Victorian era into contemporary home decor. They can be used to frame an entryway, lending an air of grandeur and welcoming elegance to guests. Alternatively, placed in a garden, on a patio, or even indoors in a sunroom, they can serve as stunning focal points, housing a variety of plants from cascading flowers to sculptural foliage, thereby marrying the beauty of nature with the craftsmanship of the past. Their robust construction and weather-resistant material make them equally suited for both outdoor and indoor environments, providing a versatile solution for adding a touch of historical sophistication to any space.
