PAIR OF TEAK 19TH CENTURY CONSOLE TABLES WITH DRAWERS AND HUMPBACK STRETCHERS

$5,900

A pair of teak wood console tables from the 19th century with lateral drawer and humpback stretchers. This pair of 19th-century teak wood console tables emanates the timeless elegance and sturdy craftsmanship characteristic of the period. Each table is uniquely designed with a single lateral drawer, providing both functionality and a touch of asymmetry that captivates the eye. The humpback stretchers, a distinctive feature, adorn the upper section, adding structural integrity and visual interest, while plain stretchers at the bottom ensure stability and balance. The tables rest on cylindrical legs, lending a graceful yet solid foundation to the overall design. The natural warmth and rich grain of teak wood enhance the tables' aesthetic appeal, making them a versatile addition to any home. These console tables can serve various purposes - as sophisticated hallway pieces displaying cherished collectibles, in the living room as side tables flanking a sofa, or even in a dining room as additional serving surfaces. Their historical provenance and beautiful patina add a layer of depth and narrative to contemporary, traditional, or eclectic interiors, inviting conversation and admiration. The compact size and practical storage offered by the side drawers make these tables not only a statement of style but also of utility, seamlessly blending the past with modern living requirements.
