REGENCY ENGLISH MAHOGANY PEMBROKE TABLE WITH DRAWER, QUADRIPOD BASE, LION FEET

$5,995

An English Regency period mahogany Pembroke table from the 19th century with drop leaves, cross-banding, single drawer and quadripod base. This exquisite English Regency period mahogany Pembroke table from the 19th century marries functionality with classic elegance. It features a versatile design with drop leaves that easily extend to serve as a spacious surface. The table's top is accentuated with subtle cross-banding, adding a luxurious depth to its appearance. The central drawer, flanked by intricately carved acanthus leaves, offers practical storage space and is adorned with ornate brass hardware, showcasing the craftsmanship of the era. This table stands on a sophisticated quadripod base, culminating in lion paw feet fitted with casters, allowing for easy mobility without sacrificing style. In a modern home, this Pembroke table can serve multiple purposes – as an elegant bedside table in its compact form or as side table when fully extended (measuring 41"W when the leaves are up). It would fit seamlessly into a living room, study, or bedroom, offering a touch of Regency elegance and practicality. Its timeless design ensures it can blend with contemporary décor while standing out as a statement piece of historical significance.
