SPANISH MIDCENTURY GILT METAL CROWN CHANDELIER WITH ELONGATED LEAVES, US WIRED

$3,450

A Spanish gilt metal crown chandelier from the Midcentury period, with elongated leaves and frosted glass bottom. Created in Spain during the midcentury period, this gilt metal crown chandelier exudes timeless elegance and refined craftsmanship. The chandelier features a circular body adorned with elongated leaves, gracefully extending outwards to form a radiant crown shape. The leaves, finished in a luxurious gilt, add a touch of opulence and sophistication to the piece. At the bottom, a frosted glass panel diffuses the light from the concealed Edison bulb within, casting a soft and inviting glow. The single Edison bulb, professionally rewired for the USA, ensures that this chandelier not only provides beautiful illumination but also meets modern electrical standards. The frosted glass bottom not only diffuses the light but also adds a subtle, ambient quality to the illumination, enhancing the chandelier's overall charm. This Spanish gilt metal crown chandelier is an ideal addition to various interior settings. In a living room, it serves as a captivating focal point, creating a warm and inviting atmosphere. In a dining room, it can function as an elegant centerpiece, adding a touch of vintage glamour to the space. In an entryway, it offers a welcoming glow, greeting guests with its radiant beauty. The combination of elongated leaves and the frosted glass bottom creates a harmonious blend of boldness and subtlety, characteristic of Midcentury design. The intricate details and exquisite craftsmanship ensure that this chandelier not only illuminates but also elevates the aesthetic of any space it adorns.
