SWEDISH 19TH CENTURY PAINTED DEMILUNE TABLES WITH CABRIOLE LEGS, A PAIR

$12,600

A pair of Swedish Rococo style painted wood demi lune console tables from the 19th century with cabriole legs. This pair of Swedish Rococo-style demi-lune console tables, crafted during the 19th century, exudes timeless elegance and Scandinavian charm. Their graceful design is characterized by cabriole legs and a light painted finish, a hallmark of Scandinavian furniture that allows the natural wood to subtly peek through. These console tables are not just pieces of furniture; they're versatile accents that can enhance the beauty of various spaces in your home. Place them in your entryway or hallway to create an inviting focal point. Adorned with fresh flowers or decorative items, they provide a warm welcome to guests. In the living room, these tables can function as stylish sofa back consoles, offering a convenient surface for lamps, art, or a cup of tea. Their delicate cabriole legs add a touch of sophistication to your seating area. Consider using one in a bedroom as a charming vanity table or a nightstand with a vintage twist. The curved shape and elegant legs lend a touch of romance to your personal space. Their light painted finish complements a range of interior styles, from classic to eclectic, making them a timeless addition to your decor. With these versatile tables, you're not just investing in furniture; you're acquiring a piece of Swedish design history that will gracefully adapt to your evolving home aesthetics.
